Our Motivation

Do you have a favorite food?

Do you want the best version of that food, no matter where you are?

You should never settle for second-best.

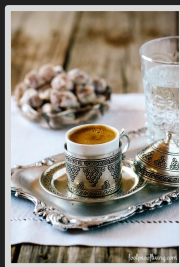

Now you don't have to.

carrot cake

indian food

turkish coffee

tacos

pizza

Description & Results

- ❖ Our goal is to help people find the best version of their favorite food in whatever location they are in
- ❖ We built a fun & informative app that is useful & amusing...all at once
 - The giphy API adds a fun element to search results. Random results = random fun
 - The yelp API returns an easy to read display of nearby restaurants, addresses, customer ratings & review count. Specific results = user satisfaction
- ❖ Returns highest customer ratings & review count in an easy to read format

Our Design Process

Information Gathering

- ❖ We riffed on ideas, discussing what interested us each
- ❖ After gathering ideas, we settled on our concept by balancing interests & feasibility

Planning & Coding

- ❖ Lead responsibilities were determined
- ❖ MVP was determined
- ❖ While much of our work was done independently, our team did a lot of coding & administrative work together in an effort to assist the lead and to better understand our code as group contributors

Testing

- ❖ We leveraged our team members' knowledge of different locations to test the app
- ❖ App was also tested from a technical perspective, feedback was provided and the team brainstormed/applied solutions
- ❖ We sent one of our developers to a location outside of the US to test that our app functions internationally - and it does

Lead Developers & Technologies Leveraged

Future Developments

At deployment, we were working on adding svg star ratings as a 'new technology'. SVP stands for Scalable Vector Graphics and will provide resolution-free images & glyphs to represent star ratings next to our yelp results. Shown here is our attempt, which we were not able to complete.
